FOOD LOVER'S DREAM: A CULINARY ADVENTURE IN BAROSSA

Let your food freak run wild in Barossa, after all where great grapes grow, great food grows. From incredible restaurants to casual eateries, farmer's markets, and everything in between, you're for a treat. It's time to let your tastebuds lead the way.

DAY 1

EXPLORING BAROSSA'S FOOD SCENE

Rise and shine, fellow food fanatics! It's time to kick-start your day with a hearty breakfast in Barossa. Start your morning at one of the many brekkie spots in town, where you can indulge in everything from fluffy pancakes to smashed avocado on sourdough. Be sure to swing by one of the old-school bakeries for a taste of nostalgia with their perfect sausage rolls or freshly baked sourdough loaves.

If sweet is more your thing, it's time to satisfy your sweet tooth at Barossa Valley Chocolate Company or Melbas for child-like indulgence in all things chocolatey. And don't forget to cool off with a scoop (or two) of ice cream from one of the local shops.

For all you foodie fanatics, a Barossa visit is not complete without a visit to food icon Maggie Beer's Farmshop. Onsite restaurant The Farm offers cooking classes too, roll your sleeves up and put on the pinnie for a masterclass like no other!

Barossa is way more than platters at wineries (though they are darn good), you can find hatted dining at many wineries including Hentley Farm, St Hugo and Fino, as well as swoon-worthy deliciousness at Harvest Kitchen (try the 'feed me like a Barossan' menu) and Lou Miranda, where you'll feel like one of the family.

As the day winds down, make your way to Otherness in quaint township Angaston for a taste of local hospitality paired with both Barossa and international wines, their mouthwatering plates will have you wanting to try everything on the menu. Pro-tip, DO NOT skip the bread (made by none other than Breaking Bread's Sarah Voigt).

A FEAST FOR THE SENSES

The perfect coffee does exist, and we've got cafes to prove it, try Fleur Social or any one of the main street spots where locals hang out early morning for that ubiquitous cup of joe.

Next up, it's time to indulge in some culinary delights from around the world. Treat your taste buds to authentic Vietnamese cuisine paired with an epic wine list at FermentAsian, a favorite among local winemakers. For a taste of Colombia, head to El Estanco and savor their inspired dishes bursting with flavor and dazzling cocktails and Latin grooves.

And for the grand finale, book a table at Appellation, a destination restaurant that's worthy of a detour. Sit back, relax, and let the chefs and sommeliers work their magic as you indulge in a culinary experience like no other. If you've planned well, you can roll back to your room at co-located luxury vineyard retreat The Louise.
